

MASTER CLASSES @ Hoff-Barthelson Music School

RACHEL BARTON PINE, violin Saturday, April 28, 12:30 pm

Heralded as a leading interpreter of the great classical masterworks, international concert violinist Rachel Barton Pine thrills audiences worldwide with her dazzling technique, lustrous tone and emotional honesty. With an infectious joy in music-making and a passion for connecting historical research to performance, Ms. Pine transforms audiences' experiences of classical music. She has appeared as soloist with many of the world's most prestigious ensembles, including the Chicago Symphony, the Philadelphia Orchestra, the Royal Philharmonic; and the Netherlands Radio Kamer Filharmonie. Ms. Pine is passionate about sharing classical music with people of all ages and backgrounds and is deeply committed to using music in community service, a value that we aim to instill in all our students at HBMS.

Master class coaching by guest artists has been part of Hoff-Barthelson's curriculum since the School's founding in 1944. This distinguished tradition continues this season with a roster of world-class musicians and educators including theater director Laura Josepher, composer David Sisco, pianist Michael Boriskin, cellist Peter Stumpf, violist Chauncey Patterson, violinist Rachel Barton Pine, flutist Yoobin Son, jazz great Gary Smulyan and members of the New York Philharmonic.

Master classes are an enlightening experience for students and audiences alike. After months of careful preparation, students perform for, and then receive feedback and guidance from a master teacher who challenges the student to think in new and critical ways about the piece they've prepared. The results are inspiring and serve as a catalyst for students to reach new heights in their own musical explorations. Yet the learning isn't limited just to the students who perform. In point of fact, any student—regardless of their level of development or whether or not they even play the same instrument—can learn a great deal.
